Position Summary

The University at Buffalo School of Dental Medicine is seeking to fill multiple part-time Clinical Faculty positions. Our DDS program provides students with the basic science training, clinical expertise and analytical skills necessary to attain the highest level of proficiency as a practitioner.

Major responsibilities may include:

- Teaching and lectures at the predoctoral level.
- Teaching and lectures focused on behavioral science and special health care needs at the predoctoral level.
- Pre-clinical and clinical teaching of implant prosthodontics.
- Surgery at pre and post-doctoral level.

About the School of Dental Medicine

As a leader in oral health education, research and patient care, we proudly rank among the top dental schools in the nation and the world. Our comprehensive accredited programs, led by renowned faculty, encompass the art and science of oral health. For over 125 years, we have prepared general practitioners, researchers and scientists to be leaders in oral health and dentistry-work that has changed lives.

Through our on-site UB Dental clinic and mobile dental units, we provide compassionate, expert care to more than 140,000 patients annually. In addition, our outreach efforts provide critical education and services within the community, working to improve access to oral health care among our most vulnerable populations.

Together, our faculty, staff and students are shaping the future of oral health care.

University at Buffalo is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and, in keeping with our commitment, welcomes all to apply including veterans and individuals with disabilities.
